GREEN BAY, WI (February 12, 2019). Foundations Health & Wholeness, Inc. is a 54-year old non-profit organization with a mission of innovating care to heal mind and spirit; changing lives, families, and community. For over a decade, Foundations has hosted an annual Ethics in Business Awards luncheon to celebrate people and organizations who serve as role models in creating a culture of ethics in our community.

Foundations is now seeking nominations for the 12th Annual Ethics in Business Awards in four categories:

- Business
- Individual
- Nonprofit
- Youth

To nominate an organization or individual in any of these categories, visit https://foundationsgb.org/eib19 for more details and the nomination form. Anyone can nominate, there is no limit on the number of nominations made, and self-nominations are permitted. An independent selection committee makes all decisions about nominees and finalists. The nomination deadline is Monday, March 25, 2019.

“There is a strong connection between ethical business environments, and healthy communities,” said Tom Hinz, Chairman of the Ethics in Business Awards Steering Committee. “The Ethics in Business Awards highlights positive models of ethical behavior—those organizations and people who champion the Universal Ethical Principles. Ethics is more than doing nice things. It’s a set of moral principles by which we live and communities thrive.”

According to Ryan Good, President & CEO of Foundations Health & Wholeness: “Every one of us has an impact on others in our community. We make our impact by how we act in business, at school, and with our neighbors and community members. Recognizing healthy work environments and people who promote good ethics is a positive way we can promote emotional well-being and positive mental health.”

The Ethics in Business Awards luncheon is on Thursday, November 7, 2019. For full details about the Ethics in Business Awards, visit https://foundationsgb.org/ethics-business-awards/.
